Administrative history: Middle East Supply Centre (1941-1945)

The Middle East Supply Centre was set up in April 1941, after the closing of the Mediterranean in 1940 made the maintenance of supplies increasingly difficult both for the war effort and for the civilian population of the Middle East. From very early on the Centre was Anglo-American in policy. It exercised its control through import licensing and bulk supply. Private trade in certain essential foodstuffs was banned, and local agriculture, especially of cereals, was developed and stimulated. The Middle East Supply Centre also advised on materials supplies, transport, public health and locust control and the Aid to Russia convoys from the Persian Gulf. It was disbanded in September 1945. The Director of Transport was Harold Elliott.
