Biographical history: From the contents of the album it seems likely that the creator of the album was a member of the Anglican community in Jerusalem in the 1890s to the early 1900s. The creator of the album may have been a woman, interested or involved in the educational and social work of the Anglican Church and someone who knew the Blyth family.

Scope and content: Olive wood bound photograph album with Jerusalem engraved in English and printed in Hebrew on the cover mainly containing photographs of prominent sites in Jerusalem such as the Dome of the Rock, El Aksa Mosque, Solomon's Stables, the tower of David, the valley of Kedron, the pool of Siloam, the mount of Olives, Gordon's Calvary and the Golden Gate. Also includes some agricultural images as well as Joseph's Tomb, Jacob's well, Gideon's fountain as well as images relating to education such as group photographs of pupils and photographs of the L.J.S. [London Jews Society] Boy's and Girl's school and a large group photograph of a picnic party in 1898 plus one Christmas card from 1922.

Custodial history: The photograph album was one of a set of four delivered by a vicar to a junk shop. Three of the albums were purchased by a dealer but this album was left, probably as its binding was broken and as most of the album is empty. Christopher Daws purchased the album in about 2000 and then decided in 2010 to find home for the photograph album where it would be preserved and appreciated. After searching the internet Christopher Daws found that the Middle East Centre Archive had the papers and photographs of Estelle Blyth, who appears in some of the photographs and so gifted the album to the Archive.

Immediate source of acquisition: Received as a gift from Christopher Daws on 11 May 2010
